What is spinal stenosis? As we age, our spines change. These normal wear-and-tear effects of aging can cause the space around the spinal cord to become narrow. This condition is called spinal stenosis. When stenosis occurs in the lower back it is called lumbar spinal stenosis (LSS). This puts pressure on the spinal cord and the spinal nerve roots, and may cause pain, numbness, or weakness in the legs.

Persons who have this condition may have tried treatments that don't give lasting pain relief. This program will discuss the latest non-surgical and surgical treatment options for LSS.

Dr. Eric Zimmerman & Dr. Howard Beck

Dr. Howard Beck, from the Munson Spine and Nerve Pain Treatment Center, will discuss non-surgical management for LSS. Dr. Eric Zimmerman, Neurosurgeon, will discuss surgical treatment options including a new minimally invasive alternative which is an interspinous process decompression device: the X-Stop spacer.
